6b. Is the module/programme design, delivery and assessment informed by up- to-date research or professional practice and/or by current developments in teaching and learning, within the discipline or sector? If “No”, please comment:	Y	N
We had opportunities to discuss the recent developments during the assessment vetting process as well as during the campus visits. I also had some opportunity of learning good practices from university of law and we have implemented some of them in our institution as well. University of Law tutors are very good in keeping themselves updated on the matter of up-to-date research despite the fact that they teach more professional courses.	Y
6c. Does the curriculum design and assessment strategy enable students to meet the programme learning outcomes? If “No”, please comment:	Y	N
Absolutely, The curriculum covers the leaving outcome very well and supportively challenges the students to achieve them	Y
6d. How well does the programme/module, in your opinion, prepare graduates for employment or further study?
The program and modules prepares the student very well for the world of work as well as research degrees such as M.Phil PhD.

Areas of Good Practice

7a. Are there are particular features of student assessment that you would like to highlight as being innovative?
The detail feedback and clarity of assessment.
7b. Are there are any particular areas of good practice in relation to standards and assessment processes that would be worthy of dissemination to a wider audience ?
The assessment is very clear and the feedback during the marking is great. I have externally examined in few institutions before, and I absolutely admire the University of Law’s assessment vetting process. The Change notice form is something worthy of wider dissemination as it demonstrates the development of assessment.

Other Comments

8a. Do you have any suggestions for ways in which the University would enhance the student learning experience?

The University of Law already uses a lot of technology. I have been using gamification techniques and have been using flip lectures, almost like a joining instruction in my place of work, which is very much appreciated by my students.

8b. Do you have any other comments to make on areas not covered elsewhere in this report?

No
